

Nomadic Theatre Co presents

HOW TO FLY!

In this breathtaking glimpse of what happens when acrobatics, clowning, masks, dance and object puppetry collide, Heather Pearl and Sarah Liane Foster take the audience to new heights in the quest to discover how to fly. The skilled duo travels in search of Amelia Earhart, who disappeared while flying over the Pacific Ocean. Be on the lookout for her during the performance, while Captain Chicken learns to take wing, albatrosses dance on stilts and migrating geese turn upside-down. Following the show the artists share secrets of how the show was created.

The Nomadic Theatre Co has been creating and performing original physical theatre shows for 4 years. Based in Portland, Oregon, the performers and directors take ideas which interest and excite them, and dive into them. Physically exploring numerous aspects and avenues of the topic of flight, they created How To Fly. This is the company's fifth creation. The three core members, Michael O'Neill, Sarah Liane Foster and Heather Pearl are all graduates of the Dell'Arte International School of Physical Theatre in Blue Lake, California.
